WEDNESDAY OCTOBER 9, 1878.

Newly-Discovered Cave. The tract consists of about twenty-eight acres. Upon this is situated the great cave recently found. In full view of the turnpike, about 200 yards distant, about halfway up the hill, in a small cluster of undergrowth, is its entrance. A massive rock, with a face as smooth as if hewn by the hand of man, forms the arch over the doorway, and through which visitors can now pass with perfect ease. The first chamber is about seventy-five feet wide, eighty or ninety long, and fifteen or twenty high, the roof of which is solid limestone, from which the stalactites hang like icicles and sparkle in the lamp-light in rich and gorgeous profusion. As far as explored the distance is variously estimated from a thousand to sixteen hundred yards. The grandeur and awe-inspiring scenes to be seen at every step along this dark pathway, leading deep into the bosom of the earth, and upon which the foot of man has but recently pressed, would be futile for the most graphic pen to attempt to describe. First through long and dark chasms, with here and there a pillar as white as marble rising from the floor to the vaulted dome above, as if placed there for supports by its great architect, then through narrow corridors and high galleries into large and specious amphitheatres, draped with curtain-like folds of damask and linen. Probably the objects of greatest interest-certainly the most universally admired-are the numerous little springs, lakes, and fountains that are found here imbedded, as it were, in basins of marble, and whose cool and limpid waters are as clear as erystal. The largest of these is from four to five feet deep, the same in winth, and Brom ten to twenty feet in length. Altegether, it is considered second to no natural curiosity in the State, and when once fully explored and thoroughly developed may prove to be the equal of any upon the continent .- Page Vourier.

Yellow-Fever a Small Matter. Cities like New Orleans, Memphis, and Galveston, that consume from 560 to 5,000 barrels of pork, and four times as many kegs of lager-beer and gallons of whiskey each summer-day, while they confine forty or fifty per cent. of their population in stifling tenement-houses, school-rooms, and work-shops, who fait to provide free public baths and legislate against river-bathing within their corporate limits-such cities, whether situated in the swamps, like New Orleans, or on dry hills, like Memphis, are lever factories, and produce epidemic discases by the use of calorific food in a sweltering elimate, as systematically as the great New Orleans ice factory evolves cubes of congested water by the evaporation of ether within and around copper water-tanks.

Abstinence from fat meat and all intoxicating and sudorific beverages, and a liberal use of fruit and cooling, non-stimulating drinks, together with frequent baths in cool water and cool air, would insure the inhabitants of the swampiest river-bottoms not only against yellow-fever, but against chills, dyspepsia, and all sorts of intestinal disorders; and common apple-butter or a Intle cold lemonade might supersede all the absurd nostrums and alcoholic mixtures that are swallowed as febrifuges.

Persons, like Baron Brissee, who frankly admit that "their only object in life is to diminish its tedium," act at least consistently if they adopt the most effectual means to shorten its duration; but householders who, from motives of economy, grudge their children a handful of apples, or an excursion to a shady pic-nie ground, should not boast of their annual savings before they have deducted the doctor's bill .- Felix L. Oswald, of Decatur, Ala., in Cincinnati Commercial.

COMMUNICATIONS TO REPORTERS .- The trial of George A. Begy, colonel of the Fifty-fourth regiment, of Rochester, on the charges preferred against him by General Brinker, is progressing slowly. A point of some interest, which was decided on Friday, is thus set forth by the Rochester Express: "The city editor of the Express was subpænaed as a witness in the case to testify as to how he obtained the information on which he based his article in regard to the charges against Colonel Begy, which appeared in this paper on the 15th of July last. The witness declined to answer on the ground that a disclosure by him of the name of his informant or informants would seriously injure him in his business as a newspaper man; that the information had been imparted to him under the pledge of secrecy; that he very often was not able to obtain information on various matters except on conditions of secrecy, and that therefore all communications to a newspaper-man should THIS IS TO GIVE NOTICE THAT ON be regarded as privileged, the same as communications between lawyers and clients.

boy came with the message, "Dwyer sent me up to say he'd be bere pretty soon.' Next, a stage driver pulled up his horse to say, "I passed Fred. Dwyer down the road, and he wanted me to tell you he'd be right along." Sultan wondered why Dwyer had taken so much trouble to give such trifling information, and while he was thinking about it, his son ran in and said, "Fred's coming to kill you-he says so." Sultan hastily armed himself. Dwyer soon came up,-drew a revolver, fired, and missed his mark, but received three bullets in his body and died.

THE FASHIONS AS A GREAT MORAL AGENT. In the early days of Utah a calico dress and sun-bonnet were the highest extravagance of Mormon women, but at the present day their demands for personal adornment have so greatly increased that one man could hardly be expected to provide imported tollettes for half a dozen wives, or elaborate trousseaux for thirty daughters. Thus the much-slandered fashions have really given the death-blow to polygamy .- Salt Lake correspondence Boston Transcript.

PLAN TO FIX UP CONKLING .- Occasionally it happens that notes intended only for the eye of the editor or printer get set up by the "intelligent compositor." Such is the explanation of the following astonishing sentence which concludes the New York Mail's report of Mr. Conkling's speech at the New York Republican Convention: "Let our motto be, in essentials unity, in non-essentials liberty, in all things charity, to go at the end of Cenkling,"

THE MAD GOVERNORS .- It is a tempest in a teapot—possibly, to extend the figure, a pair of teapots. The Governor of South Carolina lost his temper, and the Governor of Massachusetts jost his. No real harm has of Massachusetts remember what the Governor of North Carolina said to the Governor of South Carolina?—New York Times.

> BANKRUPTCY. [No. 5784.]

the 31st day of August, A. D. 1878, a warrant in bankruptcy was issued out of the District Court of the United States for the Eastern District of Virmunications between lawyers and clients. The counsel endeavored by various cunningly-devised questions to extract the desired information, but the Court ruled that the witness was not compelled to answer for the reasons he had stated."
